Biden School Graduate Student Support Guide

The Biden School is committed to supporting the success of our students. We have drafted the following guide to help communicate what is available related to common support requests. We are continuously working to expand the support services we provide to our students. If you have ideas on how the School could better support your needs, please feel free to reach out to us at the following e-mail: pa-academics@udel.edu.

Work Space

Access to on-campus workspace is often a critical concern for graduate students. The Biden School offers limited shared workspace in Graham Hall, room 296. Students are asked not to leave personal belongings in the shared work areas.

In addition to the shared workspace in Graham Hall, there are a couple of additional options to consider.

- If you are on assignment as an RA, you should reach out to your supervisor to explore if a workspace is available in the associated center, program, or unit.
- If neither of the above applies to you, the library has several types of spaces graduate students can access using their UD ID. Details can be found here: <https://library.udel.edu/ourspaces/spaces/>
 - There is a Graduate Student Research Room- located inside the Reading Room on the first floor of Morris Library.
 - Third-floor Graduate Student Study Area- features a mix of carrels, tables with dividers, study pods, and soft seating, as well as eight group study rooms that graduate students can exclusively reserve and access via card swipe. Digital lockers are also now available in the space for short-term use with just a quick tap of a UD ID.
 - Group study rooms can be found on all levels of Morris Library. These rooms can be reserved by groups of two or more UD students up to one week in advance.
 - The University of Delaware also offers dedicated library research space for graduate students. Details can be found here: <https://library.udel.edu/circulation/graduatestudents/graduate-student-carrels/>

Computing Resources

Students have access to computing resources through central IT and the Biden School. We are working to build out increased support in this area. If you are having difficulty accessing software or computing resources, please reach out.

- Physical Lab- Central IT maintains a physical computing site at Smith Hall <https://sites.udel.edu/computingsites/locations/smith-hall/>
- Virtual Lab- Remote labs allow you to use an existing computer lab on campus, but from a remote location. The following link provides details on how to access these services. <https://services.udel.edu/TDCClient/32/Portal/KB/ArticleDet?ID=724>
- UDeploy- University of Delaware students, faculty, and staff can download software licensed for their use from UDeploy. <https://udeploy.udel.edu/>
- Biden School Loaner Laptop- The Biden school owns several loaner laptops that can be lent to students for school needs. We are working to ensure that they include commonly used software packages and will be available to students for check out. Please contact the Assistant Dean for information on how to borrow a machine.
